

Randy Sue Coburn

Beautifully realized...a perceptive assessment of what women do in love. — Kirkus Reviews

With tremendous heart, humor and wisdom, Randy Sue Coburn brings to life the Pacific Northwest enclave of a remote island in Washington's Puget Sound, and its many unforgettable inhabitants in her latest novel, Owl Island. Coburn's dazzlingly written novel is set among the towering firs and windswept beaches of the Pacific Northwest. This is a superb, beautifully rendered story from an accomplished screenwriter and novelist.

Randy Sue Coburn began her career as a journalist then turned to writing screenplays, including Mrs. Parker and the Vicious Circle, which premiered at the Cannes Film Festival and won Jennifer Jason Leigh a best actress award. She lives in Seattle with her husband, Nick, and their dog, Binx.
